REMEMBERING Brinn

When they say man's best friend, that's not what my beloved best friend was to me. Brinn was my shadow, protector, a police K9 officer, a certified Search & Rescue dog, a Federal registered Service dog, and as I called her the smartest most loyal dependable loving dog (my child) on the planet. You could teach her anything in 5 minutes or less. Brinn risked her life to save mine from criminals as I would have gave mine to protect her without a thought. Brinn lived a wonderful life & made mine so much better with her in it. She found missing children and lost adults as well. And could predict deadly medical conditions as a certified service dog that forced a loved career to end way too soon. Right now I'm just empty. We all know dogs have limited life spans and Brinn lived every day of her life to the fullest. I hope she's crossed that rainbow and is running around like a puppy again in doggy Heaven. Rest in peace my beautiful girl. No dog on Earth could never fill your paws. Till we meet again mommy will miss you every second of every day.
